Pioneer Teachers. November 20, 2018. kelly. 20th. At an international school, people come and go. And that's totally normal. Students might be with us for one, two, three years, others join in Kindergarten and stay until Graduation. The same goes for our families, some stay only a couple of years, others send all of their kids to the FIS.

The teachers were clergymen from the Church of England and they taught English, Greek, Latin, history, geography, writing and arithmetic. Since all of these grammar schools were located in a town, it meant that rural children did not get a chance to attend unless their parents could afford room and board in town - an impossibility as farmers needed to invest what they could into the crops that they were growing.

With WiDi, teachers can walk between groups, carrying just their laptops. In real time, they can sit with students who require more attention, while still providing live instructions, notes and diagrams to the rest of the class. St Peters Indooroopilly teachers, Ashleigh Walters and Emma Egan, shared their experiences with this earlier in the year. At St Peters Springfield, pioneering teacher, Caitlin Knight, has taken the use of WiDi one step further.

Teachers work with students, parents, administrators, coaches, camp counselors, education researchers, postsecondary institutions, teachers of other grades and other subjects-in short, teachers accomplish their daily miracles through collaboration by asking questions about what they don't know and sharing what they do. This book was written by teacher pioneers to share their collaborating, their designing, and their exploring.
